

Trash-the-Dress Photography

aCoolDryPlace Photography

The name Trash-the-Dress is a little misleading really; the aim of the session isn't to destroy your dress, it's to make great portraits of the bride and groom in their wedding gear. For this reason Trash-the-Dress sessions are also known by a number of other names, including "fearless-bride", or "liberate the dress". This guide will give you a brief introduction to what we believe Trash-the-dress sessions to be about, and what services we offer.

The chances are that the bride will want to look spotless for her entire wedding day, which may prohibit some more interesting portrait photos. However, before you hang the wedding dress up, or even get it dry cleaned, perhaps you want to consider getting some more artistic photos done without worrying so much about the dress.

Our aim with these sessions is to get some great portraits of the bride (in her wedding dress) and groom. In a typical session we will try a number of poses and locations (at the one main location) to give you a wide range of photos to choose from. If you have a particular idea in mind, the photographer will be happy to hear your suggestions and discuss them with you – after all the aim of the session is to get a photo that you like.

Prices

Trash-the-dress Portrait session

- Includes three 12x8" prints or one 12x8" gallery-style print
- From £100 for a half day.
- There is no charge for travel within Oxford. Please enquire about travel costs if you want sessions done further afield.

Additional prints will be available online from £4.

www.acooldryplacephotography.com